BUFFALO FISH STOP BOATS.

Remarkable Swarm of Big Swimmers in Louisiana Waters—Negroes Get Fluffy Harvest.

A dispatch from New Orleans says that steamers and other vessels plying on Bayou Barataria and Harvey's Canal were stopped on Thursday by swarms of buffalo fish which crowded the bayou. The fish were so dense that thousands of them were lifted out of the water by the others and thrown on the shore. The mail steamer F. Covence, between New Orleans and Grand Isle, had to butt or cut her way through the mass of fish.

As soon as the news reached Gretna and Harvey's Canal, hundreds of negroes went down to the bayou and began throwing out the fish, many of them three or four feet long. Some took the fish home by the wagon load.

The buffaloes were driven up the bayou into Harvey's Canal by the southeast winds, which forced the tide up. They and Mississippi catfish are seldom eaten by the whites.

McFARLAND'S VICTOR.

Has Fine Mackerel Fare at at Boston This Morning.

WILL MAKE A BIG STOCK.

Fish Mostly Taken in Bad Weather Tuesday.

Sch. Victor, Capt. John W. McFarland, is at Boston today with a big fare of mackerel, and the worthy skipper and his crew can feel like celebrating the Fourth in extravagant shape.

The Victor has 300 barrels of fresh mackerel and 130 barrels of salt mackerel, most of the fish having been taken Tuesday on Georges. The weather was bad at the time and none of the vessels took fish that day.

Capt. McFarland has been near the top all the season, and this fare will cause him to give high line a hard rub if not put him in the coveted place.

The fresh mackerel of sch. Victor sold at 14 cents each.

Sch. George F. Edmunds, Capt. Willard S. Poole, is in port from Georges with 200 barrels of salt mackerel. Capt. Poole says it was the worst month of June he ever spent on the water.

FIGHTING SWORDFISH.

One of the Crew of Sch. Forest Maid Has Lively Experience.

Sch. Forest Maid, of Provincetown, Capt. Sinnett, arrived at Boston yesterday from Georges with 41 big swordfish, the first catch brought to Boston this season by vessels. Capt. Sinnett reported the fish scarce, and he was absent two weeks securing his catch.

A. J. Scott, one of the crew, had a thrilling experience while on the fishing grounds. A big swordfish weighing over 300 pounds, was speared from the pulpit rigged on the bowsprit, and Scott was sent off in a dory to bring the swordfish alongside the vessel. Although mortally wounded, the fish showed fight, and as Scott approached it attacked the dory, diving underneath it and plunging its sword through the bottom of the boat.

Fortunately Scott was in the bow of the dory, while the sharp sword of the fish penetrated the stern. The swordfish was unable to extricate itself and other members of the crew were sent off and assisted in bringing the dory alongside the schooner. The dory had to be hoisted to the deck in order to release the fish, which in the meantime had succumbed.
